Faulkner Hospital has been named as one of the Best Workplaces for Commuters

Chris Sargent proudly displays the Best Workplaces for Commuters award that Faulkner Hospital recently received.

Faulkner Hospital was recently selected as one of the Best Workplaces for Commuters by the National Center for Transit Research (NCTR) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Faulkner Hospital is the only hospital in Massachusetts on the Best Workplaces for Commuters list for 2011.

This designation follows more than a year of hard work by the Safety & Security Department and the Parking, Transportation & Commuter Services (PTCS) Department to drastically improve commuter option programs for employees at the hospital.

In order to receive this designation, Faulkner is to maintain a minimum level of employee participation, designate a central point of contact for employee questions, provide an Emergency Ride Home program for participating employees and offer a choice of commuter benefits to interested employees.

Ongoing benefits, such as a free offsite parking lot, shuttle service to and from the lot and the Forest Hills MBTA station, and a hospital-subsidized pre-tax MBTA pass program have been administered by Chris Sargent, Parking Administrator.

Sargent says that he hopes to "serve as an example for other hospitals" when it comes to planning and implementing new commuter programs and will work with other institutions interested in developing commuter programs of their own.
